The White Pelicans Are Back

A large flock of White Pelicans have returned to winter in our area, and can be seen near the inlet on sandbars. One of North America's largest birds, the American White Pelican is distinctive for its nine-foot wingspan, conspicuous white body, and large bill and pouch. Look for them on your next boat trip!

Dehumidify For Freshness

There are few environments better suited to creating unpleasant odors than a boat. Close spaces, dampness, diesel engines, and holding tanks are just a few of the things that can offend. Add a couple of dogs to the mix and, well.... Products like Damp Rid can help, but a dehumidifier in the cabin works wonders.

Plan Your Passage

Shifting sands and dredging at the Inlet make identifying the correct passage difficult. If you have a question about safely passing thru a channel or passing a dredge, check with your Harbor Office or radio/phone Tow Boat U.S. at 386-767-7711 for up-to-the-minute "local" knowledge.

Microadventure At Adventure

The New York Times described a microadventure as "short, perspective-shifting bursts of travel close to home." Why not try swapping the gym for a sunset boat ride, fish, anchor and spend the night? Get up early, enjoy coffee on deck then off to work from the boat. Relaxed and rejuvenated you will feel like you just came back from vacation, oh yea you did, a microadventure.

Insurance Compliance

All vessels at Adventure Yacht Harbor must be covered by insurance with a current copy of your policy on file at the marina office. This is in everyone's dockage agreement, and for everyone's protection. Please send us a copy of your current policy with the slip fees this month. Boats without coverage by the end of this month will be asked to leave AYH. Thank you in advance.

A Nautical New Year's Resolution

- Get the "green" off the boat
- Clean out the stuff that never gets used - donate it or bring it to storage.
- Tidy up the dock area around the boat..."what doesn't fit in the (dock) box, doesn't stay on the docks."
