Branden Watt from Glyndon, MN caught and released this beautiful Red Snapper. NOW - for a few days- you can keep them!

2018 Atlantic Red Snapper Season

NOAA Fisheries opened Red Snapper recreational fishing in South Atlantic federal waters for limited time this year due to recent scientific information indicated an increase in the red snapper population. These days include the three-day weekends of August 10, 11, and 12 and August 17, 18, and 19, 2018. Good luck fishermen and women! Send us photos of your catch!!

“By failing to prepare, you are preparing to fail.”

Be prepared for hurricane season this year, even though we are NOT going to have a storm (wishful thinking). Seriously, now is the time to make your plan and discuss it with the Harbor Office. We have the resources, tools and experience to help you determine your best plan of action. A good start is cleaning up all the “loose ends”... a spring cleaning in the summer...

- Remove all loose gear from the boat and dock. Stow it or bring it home.
- Make sure your trailer is operational, and ready to move your boat out of the water.
- Keep your vessel clean, safe and in a fully operational, seaworthy condition. You may be required “to remove your Vessel from the marina promptly within 48 hours after the issuance of a tropical storm or hurricane watch,” per your dockage agreement.
- Confirm the Harbor Office has all current contact info, and your current boat owner liability insurance. Be Safe!

Congratulations to Donnie Sikorski, and Team Marine Specialties for winning the NE FL Kingfish Shootout with their 54.6# trophy fish! Top prize - the 21' Yellowfin boat shown above!
